

The Lighthouse Keeper's Notebook

Morning light on the headland, illustration for the demo export.

The Lighthouse Keeper's Notebook

Mara kept a notebook by the lamp room window. When the fog rolled in, she wrote short scenes from memory: gulls on the rail, the horn at midnight, tea cooling beside the logbook.

This demo shows how DataDump pulls headings, prose, lists, an image, and a table into one PDF. CSV and Excel export the table only.

Notes from the tower

- The beam turns once every eight seconds.
- Wind from the east carries salt and gorse.
- Visitors rarely climb the stairs after dusk.

Before sunrise

1. Trim the wick and check the oil level.
2. Record the weather in the ledger.
3. Brew coffee and read yesterday's page aloud.
